THE WORLD THIS WEEK

By ROBERT PATTERSON

Preparedness Our Motto

The Pan-American conference at Havana, Cuba, was not the resounding failure Axis diplomats and agents worked to make it, nor was it the magnificent success the United States and many other Latin American republics desired. But it was far from having been held in vain. As one able observer put it, shortly after the opening of the conference, "The countries have placed their cards on the table. They know where each other stands." The clear cut aim of the United States, was, and is, to further that policy which, by keeping totalitarian powers out of the New World, will best ensure peace in this hemisphere. That program shows that we, and our Latin American supporters, know our own minds — a decided advantage over Europe's dozing democracies who failed to make up their minds until it was five minutes of midnight. Then it was too late. The Pan-American conference has only reaffirmed the necessity of united preparedness among New World nations.

Tax Totals In Total War

Wars are waged with suffering, sacrifice, and sweat, as well as with thunderous weapons. To feed that devouring monster, War, Britain's people this week are digging deeper into their pockets than ever before in their nation's existence. A gargantuan budget, calling for the expenditure of nearly $14 billion this fiscal year, is cutting a terrific swathe in Britons' incomes. A new upward boost has brought the income tax—which begins at $400 a year for single persons and $680 for married—up to 42½ per cent. Additional taxes on those in the top wage brackets will take 90 per cent of their income. In these days of fast and frightening total war, the British government is not waiting for a year to pass before making collection. This new 42½ per cent levy will simply be withdrawn every week, or month, from wage earners' pay envelopes. More, and higher, taxes are a distinct possibility, for total war is total in more senses than one. Nations embarked upon it must commandeer their own total resources and exact enormous levies from their people while, for a long season or short, standards of living cascade downward.

No Silver Platters!

Californians have been spared the necessity of rolling up their sleeves, hiding their paychecks or bankrolls under the house, and tackling once more the nine-lived pension warrants scheme promising to give away $24 million to the elderly citizens every Thursday. The State Supreme Court in just denying a writ of mandate sought by ham-and-egg pension promoters, has given—the majority of citizens hope — the coup de grace to a beguiling vision which cruelly aroused false hopes in the hearts of many credulous persons. Something for nothing, a favorite pledge of sharpers since time began,

CANDIDATE

ELMER WEYMOUTH

Announces Candidacy For Assembly

In announcing himself as a candidate for Assemblyman for the 31st district, Elmer Weymouth said:

"I will stand for the elimination of extravagance, politics, and graft in the administration of state relief, which practices deprive our truly needy citizens of relief. I am against the use of relief money to nurture subversive elements. I also stand for the halting of extravagance and waste in our general state government and for balancing our state budget. I am wholeheartedly opposed to the use by the present administration of its appointive power to pay political debts.

"We must strengthen our state government along these lines so that our state will take its place with our country in the defense and preservation of our American democracy.

"It is time that the people of the 31st Assembly district have an Assemblyman in Sacramento who will think and act for the people of the district, instead of acting as a "yes-man" for the administration."

Burglars Enter Campbell Homes

Burglars and prowlers have been active in Campbell recently. The homes of Milton Herold on Esther avenue and L. C. Shank on Latimer avenue have been entered and ransacked, with money and jewelry taken. Other residents have reported prowlers and peeping Toms.

Harry Stanhope and Howard Walker were arrested by Constable Harry Evans for being drunk and asleep in a driveway on Winchester road. They were given 30-day suspended sentences and floated out of town by Justice of the Peace J. D. Blaine.

The Carl Field family visited the Fair Wednesday. They have as their guest a niece, Miss Laurel Fields of McPherson, Kan., who accompanied them home on their return from the east. Miss Rachel Spradling who has been here since their arrival home returned to Palo Alto yesterday. Mrs. Norman Bouton of that city joined the party in the Fair visit.

WHEN DESERTS BLOOM

California, an old hand at making the desert bloom like a rose, will soon be giving the world another example of her prowess.

Her newest "big ditch," the All-American Canal, will go into service in September, Commissioner John Page of the Reclamation bureau has just announced. Four years in building, the new canal cost $38,500,000 and will pipe into the fertile Imperial valley from the Colorado river a new source of irrigation supply along its 80-mile route.

Here is one more chapter in the story that a progressive California has been writing ever since far-sighted pioneers in the last century looked undismayed at sunbaked soil and waterless wastelands, and pictured how water could transform hunderds of thousands of acres of worthless earth into great, green gardens of fertility.

Gold, they say, made California, but it was water—endless billions of gallons of it—funneled from streams and rivers through immense networks of irrigation ditches, that enabled California to flourish and grow when the gold fever died, when the time had come to build the sure foundation of an agricultural empire. Still far in the lead over other states in this development of her resources, completion of the All-American Canal will place one more feather in California's cap and make one more spread of desert land bloom like the rose.

SAFETY FOR SWIMMERS

It isn't the timid child, learning with water-wings, nor the novice swimmer who can "just make it out to the float" who gives most concern to safety authorities, as the month of August ushers in the summer's warmest weather and the great exodus to lake, ocean, river and the ol' swimmin' hole. It's the expert—the boy who swims like a fish, the powerful man who's an adept at every stroke—that they worry about.

Ten times more men drown than women, Red Cross statistics show—usually because they are over-confident and take unnecessary chances. Of men who drown, most are between the ages of 15 and 24—the athletic ages when youth is prone to over-exert and "show off."

So perhaps more for the benefit of experts than for those who haven't yet learned to swim well and are protected by their own caution, the following "dont's are stressed by lifeguards and coaches:

Don't swim in unknown waters nor dive in unknown depths.

Don't go swimming alone. You may be a marvel—but nobody can foresee all emergencies.

Don't swim more than 20 minutes at a time. Water, no matter how warm it feels, absorbs the body's heat very rapidly.

Don't underestimate distances—which always seem shorter over water.

Don't swim too far from shore.

Don't plunge in when over-heated or immediately after having eaten.

All swimmers should read those rules carefully. But, as the safety experts paradoxically warn, swim stars should read them thrice over!

BIGGEST SHOW IN AMERICA

On August 30, California will have the two biggest shows in America in full swing, and hundreds of thousands of visitors from neighboring states and from across the nation will be here to look them over.

The first is a show provided by the west, by all America and by foreign lands—the Exposition on Treasure Island; it will be at its zenith then. The second is California's own—of, by and for Californians, and for all visitors who wish to see the wealth and accomplishments, the hospitality, spirit and character of the real California expressed in one gigantic display—the State Fair.

Californians know their Fair. They are proud to know it's the biggest state show in the entire nation. And Californians know the men who make their Fair—Ken Hammaker, the big gun who guides its destiny; Bill Lenoir, whose funny, animated map of the Fair's forty acres is today at the desks of a million people in and out of California, whetting their appetite to see the big doings; Tev Paine, maestro of the tanbark, whose top rank horse shows entice the elite of the land and are probably the biggest box office of the show. Just to name a few of the fellows everybody will be congratulating in August.

There is every reason to expect an even greater attendance of out-of-state visitors than usual this year, and every reason for the greatest reception committee of Californians to help stage and enjoy the celebration. We wish it luck—we hope California's own show this year will pack 'em in!

DIALERS MAKE READERS

Alarmists who mourned that radio sets would put newspaper presses out of business will have to eat their words.

Dr. Paul F. Lazarsfeld, director of the office of radio research at Columbia University, reporting last week that between 20 and 25 per cent of the listening public dials to news broadcasts, finds that this habit has sharpened news consciousness and made for an increase, rather than a decrease, in newspaper circulation.

The superiority of the printed word over the audible one has been a fact long recognized by the vast majority of advertisers who have awarded their biggest budgets to newspapers. The average citizen himself knows why this is so. The newspaper provides him with a permanent, visual record of news or an advertised product. As a result, the reader is far less apt to forget or confuse names, dates, places or prices. The printed words enables him to choose his own reading time and set his own reading pace. He is not bound by radio schedule or the speed of an announcer's delivery.

In a word, the alarmists were barking up the wrong tree. The newspaper has firmly held its own against radio—a competitior which has, in fact, brought into the limelight more vividly than ever before, the special and unchallengeable virtues of the printed word.

Like a mountain going to Mahomet is the startling news that California's orchard gold—in a word, the luscious orange—has just successfully crashed through state lines, tariff walls and inspection stations and grabbed itself a place on the fruit stands of Florida! Late Florida oranges were conspicuous by their absence this season, so dealers there asked for a share of California's banner crop. Adversity makes strange bedfellows—and strange news! But who in California objects to news like this?

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

The seeds of bureaucracy and despotism, once they are allowed to take hold in government, spread like Bermuda grass in a lawn—and unless rooted out, they simply take over!

There is little need to cite the proof of that statement. It is on every hand.

Government agencies, during recent years, have come to act as judge, jury and executioner. Bureaus set up to administer the laws have taken over the function of enacting laws — by issuing rules and regulations which have the effect of law. Then they have sat in judgment, with quasi-judicial powers, to weigh the fate of all who have offended them.

The net effect has been to put agriculture, business and industry—and all the individuals employed by them—at the mercy of an army of petty bureaucrats, who have forgotten that they are public servants, and who set themselves up as despots, with the power to make laws, administer them and penalize all who violate them.

As a consequence, both in national and state government we have acquired a multiplicity of minor dictatorships, each jealous of its own powers, each seeking greater authority, each violating both the letter and the spirit of democracy.

What can we do about it?

Finally—perhaps due to a new realization of the dangers inherent in too much concentration of authority—efforts are under way, both in California, and in the national Congress, to put a check-rein on bureaucrats, with dictatorship complexes, and make them responsible to higher authorities.

In Congress, there is pending the Logan-Walter bill, which would insure the individual's right to redress by making subject to review by the courts the actions of many of the administrative bureaus now operating with virtually totalitarian powers.

The Logan - Walter bill strikes at the heart of bureaucratic excesses and malpractices. As a consequence, the bill is violently opposed by all the "little Hitlers" who sit in swivel chairs at Washington and who have held the power of life and death over the people who pay their salaries. Their contention, of course, is that if bureau decisions are subject to review in the courts "big business" will be able to prevent "progressive reforms" by long-drawn court appeals.

But the average farmer, who has been examined and inspected, investigated and commanded, by bureaus without end, and who has sometimes despaired of finding any time for his farming, will doubtless agree with the writer that there is more to fear today from "big government" than from "big business."

If a bureau's decisions can't stand examination in an American courtroom, then there's something wrong with the bureau and its administration. Certainly the error isn't in this country's system of checks and balances, predicated on three separate branches of government—legislative, administrative and judicial.

In California, the issue is brought sharply into focus by the DeLap constitutional amendment, which was approved by the legislature for submission to the voters at the forthcoming November election.

This amendment, like the Logan-Walter bill, provides for judicial review of orders by bureaus, boards and commissions in our state government. That such review is needed is best exemplified by recent rulings designed to circumvent the law and force agriculture to come under the terms of the Unemployment Insurance act, even though the law—as enacted by the legislature — specifically exempts farm labor from the proposal.

Regardless of the specific bills, this state and this country need to take steps to stop the spread of despotism in democracy. And the American system of divided authority is the best possible guarantee that burgaucrats won't become despots. Administrative bureaus never should have been given the right to make rules and regulations which have the effect of law. But where they have such powers, certainly their decisions should be subject to review in the courts. Otherwise, our governmental Bermuda grass will soon strangle the lawn!

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Murdock and daughter Sharon, are leaving tomorrow by auto for a vacation in the southland. Their time will be divided between Long Beach and San Pedro where Murdock has brothers living. They will be accompanied by Miss Ruby Williamson who will be the guest of friends in Alhambra, Los Angeles and vicinity, some of whom have returned more or less recently from Arabia.

CALIFORNIA SPEAKS!

Significant Statements By Interesting Californians

SAM YORTY, L. A. assemblyman, in a campaign speech for U. S. Senate—"In the face of grave national problems, California's two political clowns, Olson and Patterson, find time for child-like bickering and public profanity. Perhaps the contemplated recall should be more inclusive. It goes only half way."

CLAUDETTE COLBERT—"Legs should be shown only when there's a definite reason. In some plays my legs have been virtually part of the plot—so okay. But no real lady shows her legs for the sole reason that she has attractive ones."

SENATOR HIRAM JOHNSON—"Only the extreme pacifist says that under no circumstances will he fight. As an isolationist I would fight at the drop of the hat, if it were necessary to preserve our hemisphere."

MRS. MATTISON BOYD JONES, who lost to screen actress Helen Gahagan in contest for Democratic National committee membership—"When it came to competing with a glamorous young movie star in a delegation composed of 40 men and four women—the result was inevitable."

GEORGE CREEL—"Inasmuch as there is a Divine Power that watches over sparrows, Americans have a right to hope."

Mrs. W. W. Williamson and daughter Marylyn of North Second street and Mrs. True Tourtillott of Mountain View, who have been enjoying an outing at Big Basin, plan to return home Sunday. Miss Ruby Williamson, who had been with them returned the first of the week to prepare for her southern visit.

POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

Governor Olson's drive to purge members of the Economy Bloc in the state legislature who refused to vote new taxes, and who forced a housecleaning in the SRA, is reported under way in legislative districts throughout the state.

There are clear-cut indications on every hand of a show down battle at the primary election on August 27, when the majority of the contests will be decided.

The Governor's lieutenants successful in putting candidates in the field against most of the legislators who declined to "take program," have raised a sizeable campaign "war chest" to finance their blitzkrieg against the Economy Bloc. And officeholders of the administration have actively taken to the stump in an effort to put over Olson-endorsed candidates.

Farm groups, taxpayers' associations, civic organizations and other bodies opposed to the $50,000,000 Olson tax program, on the other hand, are rallying to the support of the Economy Bloc lawmakers and, in some instances, are carrying the fight to the Governor by waging war on legislators who supported his demands for bigger appropriations.

Typical of these groups, the Citizens Economy Bloc of California, which was formed to support economy-minded legislators during the special session battles, has entered the fray with a vigorous statement by its president, George J. Hatfield, Merced county farmer and former Lientenant Governor, urging support of Economy Bloc members regardless of their party affiliations.

"If legislators who have conscientiously opposed tax increases and fought for sensible economy are defeated, due to public apathy or indifference," warns Hatfield, "California taxpayers will pay the bill to the tune of many millions of dollars.

"Except for the splendid, unselfish work of members of the Economy Bloc in the legislature, every California taxpayer would now be paying additional and unneeded state taxes, at a time when everyone of necessity must sacrifice to pay his or her share of the federal tax bill for national defense.

"Home owners, farmers, business men, wage earners and all classes of taxpayers should disregard party lines in the legislative contests this year and keep faith with the legislators who kept faith with them. If they fail to support the members of the Economy Bloc, they certainly can't expect economy at the next session of the legislature!

Jack Anderson For Congress Campaign Started

With a program of cooperation in behalf of the diversified interests of Santa Clara county and the entire 8th Congressional district, the campaign for re-election of Congressman John Z. "Jack" Anderson will be in full swing this week.

J. W. Hutchins of San Jose, named campaign director by the general committee, announces the opening of general headquarters on the street floor at 36 East San Antonio street, San Jose. Area offices will be opened in other communities in the 8th district, manned by volunteer workers sponsoring Anderson's re-election during his absence on duty in Congress in connection with national defense and other matters.

Arthur Curtner, San Jose, chairman of the Santa Clara County Republican Central committee, announces the endorsement of Anderson's candidacy by the G. O. P. group.

"Jack Anderson is doing a fine job in Washington for the people of this district, and has proved by his diligent attention to a wide variety of matters of interest to various sections of the district that he is extremely capable and has an understanding of the problems and interest of the people of this community," Curtner said.

"I whole heartedly add my personal endorsement to that of the county committee in behalf of Jack Anderson's candidacy. Let us continue to do a good job for our community by keeping Congressman Anderson in Congress," Curtner added.

A Promise for the Future

By IRVIN S. COBB

LUNCHEON was over and it was a bit early for tea. So the scholarly young man invited the young lady who was his guest to visit the Metropolitan Museum of Art with him.

The young lady was very easy to look at but she had wasted little of her life on books and such. In fact, she was the chief ornament of the chorus of a musical show on Broadway. She didn't know where the Museum was or what it contained. But, as she so aptly remarked, she was willing to try anything once.

So the flattered youth, who was rather proud of his culture, assisted her in his car and drove her up Fifth Avenue to the vast building in the Park. He led her through gallery after gallery and was eloquent upon the beauties of the treasures there exhibited.

The tour was nearing its close. He stood with his fair companion before a priceless Old Master. She fetched a deep breath.

"Great!" she murmured. "Simply immense, get what I mean? I'm so glad I came with you. I ain't never taken up art myself. But listen, kid, if I ever do, I'll certainly make it hum!"

Advertising IS Good News

Specially now, when the world is so full of strife, misery and anxiety, it's good to be able to get the pleasant news that comes in the ads.

About a light-hearted summer turban... sportswear coolly stolen from the men . . . a refreshing hot weather beverage . . .

A pipe that promises a smoke-treat . . . a light straw hat for the steaming brow . . .

The ads are reminders that life can't all be woe . . . reminders to be as normal and comfortable as possible . . . reminders to which you can sensibly respond. For the ads lead you to sound values.

is a foolish and dangerous fantasy in this world of 1940. Security, either economic or military, is won today only by hard labor and conscientious, intelligent effort. Neither security, nor ham-and-eggs, are handed out on silver platters. People, like nations, must now either work for them, or forego them.

Gift of Time

Not money, but time, is the essence of America's defense. Signing of the $4 billion naval expansion bill by President Roosevelt sets this nation on the road to acquiring a mighty two ocean navy, even greater than the present sea power of Japan, Italy, Germany and Russia combined. But such an awesome two ocean fleet, calling for the addition of 200 ships to the navy's present fighting force, cannot be built overnight, or within one year, or two. Not until 1946 will the dreadnaughts, cruisers and aircraft carriers, authorized the other day, be at their posts in Atlantic and Pacific waters. Given the gift of time, America has abundant means and resources to gird herself with virtually impregnable defenses. Will she be given this precious gift? Every true American will pray so.

He Knew What He Wanted

Hearts will go out to the Iowa farmer, mentioned in news dispatches a few days ago, who sent in an order for two phonograph records to a city music store. With news reels, radio waves and picture magazines bombarding eyes and ears with images of devastated countrysides, crumbled homes, and bomb shattered streets, who blames this farmer for brusquely demanding, "Please send me two pieces: 'God Bless America,' and 'Let the Rest of the World Go By.' That's how I feel about things!"
